

Simply Irresistible Storytime Planning Sheet

Throughout the presentation the instructor will give you time to fill in this worksheet. After completing this worksheet you will have created your own “Parent Patter” remarks to use when you begin planning your own storytimes.

1. Write down a statement you could use to explain to the parents how we develop programs for 0-12 months and 12-24. Use the information you just learned about brain development and developmental abilities.
2. Create a statement about literacy that you can use as an introduction for parents.
3. Consider your space for your storytime programs. On the back of this paper, design and draw a floor plan. List any special accommodations you will need to consider with the 2 and under population.

4. Create a statement explaining to parents why music, movement and fingerplays are so important to their child's development.

5. How will you breakdown the age groups for the storytimes at your branch?
What times will you offer them?

6. How often will you offer your programs?
