12:55:41 PM from julia butler

to All Participants: We have problems ordering spanish language materials that are in stock. Any suggestions for vendors?

12:55:45 PM from Alicia Doktor

to All Participants: BWI has alerts and core collection development done by professional Librarians. Their website is free to access titletales.com. I got some photo novelas through EBSCO this year.

12:56:08 PM from Cindy DeLanty

to All Participants: Does Criticas magazine still do book reviews and suggested reading lists for Spanish materials?

12:57:00 PM from Alicia Doktor

to All Participants: BWI has pretty good fulfillment on Spanish materials. If you are on the west coast, contact Micaheal Keegan, he is a fantastic rep

12:57:18 PM from Marybeth Evans

to All Participants: Another distributor for telenovelas I've used is Alliance Entertainment - www.aent.com (Marybeth Evans, Anderson, SC)

12:59:09 PM from Cindy DeLanty

to All Participants: I was once told that translations of English language authors (ie Bestsellers) wasn't such a great selection for Spanish language collections? Do you think this is the case?

12:59:45 PM from Ethan van Thillo

to All Participants: Lots of small latino bookstores have options to purchase online:
